COMMUNIQUÉ DE PRESSE

-- english below --

Pour sa nouvelle exposition « Delta », Colin Snapp confère à des objets « intermédiaires » une poésie romantique qui renvoie à la fois à la perception phénoménologique et à la production artistique.

Un ensemble de fenêtres provenant d'un autobus est installé sur le sol la galerie. Elles contiennent pour l'artiste : « l'histoire d'une multitude de regards¹ ». Rassurantes et sécurisantes pour les passagers, elles sont également un élément de dissociation physique entre le moment présent et le paysage qui défile. En isolant ces fenêtres de leur contexte fonctionnel, la scission intérieur / extérieur est annulée et rend visible le filtre perceptif qui vient modifier la réalité. Au-delà des multiples histoires contenues dans ces différentes fenêtres, apparaît un regard critique sur notre société contemporain : celle de la globalisation et du virtuel, à l'image de touristes passifs bloqués derrière les vitres d'un autobus, leurs verres de lunettes de soleil, leurs objectifs d'appareils photos et leurs écrans de smartphones. La superposition des filtres et la nécessité d'enregistrer la nature dans la planéité d'une image rendent compte d'un évitement du temps qui, malgré des tentatives de distanciation et de dissociation, se déroule sous nos yeux inexorablement

Avec la série *IRND*², l'artiste présente les lentilles infrarouges qu'il utilise pour filtrer la lumière lors des tournages de ses films et qui ont été fendues ou brisées suite à leur utilisation. Elles sont aussi des fenêtres qui modifient la perception du regardeur, celui qui est derrière l'objectif et plus tard celui qui sera devant la photographie. Par-delà le filtre, les images racontent des voyages, notamment des moments de contemplation dans d'impressionnantes paysages désertiques.

De la recherche picturale autour des potentialités des objets photographiques à la critique de leur utilisation abusive, Colin Snapp rend visible les décalages entre l'expérience réelle et sa captation pulsionnelle. Il nous invite progressivement à une plongée dans le réel, une traversée de la nature et une exploration des modalités du voir en associant à la fois la transparence, le translucide et l'opacité.

PRESS RELEASE

-- french above --

For his new exhibition 'Delta', Colin Snapp confers a romantic poetry upon 'intermediary' objects referring simultaneously to phenomenological perception and artistic production.

A collection of tourist coach windows is installed on the gallery floor. For the artist, they contain 'the history of a multitude of looks'¹. Both a comforting and reassuring presence for passengers, the glass panes also implement a physical disassociation between the present moment and the landscape as it passes by. By isolating these windows from their functional context, the internal / external distinction is dissolved and this perceptive filter that modifies reality is rendered visible. Beyond the multiple stories contained within the various windows, a critical view of our contemporary society emerges: one that reflects the effects of globalisation and of the virtual as they are embodied by passive tourists immobilised behind the windows of buses, the lenses of their sunglasses and cameras, and inevitably their smartphone screens. Superposed filters and the impulse to record moments of nature in the flatness of an image detail a desire to deny time, which in spite of attempts at distance and dissociation continues inexorably to slip away.

In the series *IRND*², the artist presents the infrared lenses which he uses to filter light during the filming of his video works and which were cracked or damaged following their use. These too are windows that modify the viewer's perception, the viewer being both the one behind the camera lens and later the one who views the photograph. Beyond the filters, the images speak of travels and in particular moments of contemplation in extraordinary desert landscapes.

From this pictorial research around the potentialities of photographic objects to the criticism of their excessive use, Colin Snapp engages with the gaps between real experiences and the impulse to capture them. Snapp progressively invites us to delve into the real, into an exploration of nature and the modalities of sight by simultaneously associating the transparent, the translucent and the opaque.

La galerie Allen est un modèle unique réunissant les compétences et expériences variées d'un commissaire indépendant, Joseph Allen Shea, et d'une artiste, Mel O'Callaghan, afin de créer une plate-forme atypique où la structure commerciale est vouée à soutenir et promouvoir éthiquement l'art contemporain.

Avec un accent mis sur le format de ses expositions et leurs variations progressives, la galerie Allen souhaite mettre en place de multiples contextes d'expositions qu'ils soient in situ ou hors les murs. Elle veut interagir comme une structure hors-norme interrogeant les questions d'apparition, de production et de conservation des œuvres. C'est une solution de notre temps pour comprendre les besoins et les difficultés rencontrées par les artistes et les espaces d'expositions.

La galerie Allen souhaite devenir un générateur d'idées installé au sein d'un réseau international afin de promouvoir l'art contemporain et ses idées fondatrices.

Galerie Allen is a unique model capitalising on the varied experiences of an independent curator, Joseph Allen Shea, and artist, Mel O'Callaghan, to create a platform where commercial is the structure of an entire ecology to support the ethical presentation, promotion and production of contemporary art.

With a focus on the exhibition format and its progressive variation, Galerie Allen will deliver exhibitions concerned with context, off-site, curatorial, academic enquiry and re-invention. Understanding the needs and difficulties facing artists and art spaces Galerie Allen proposes a solution for our time.

Galerie Allen is an expanded generator strengthening cultural networks internationally through inclusivity, communication and education for the global distribution of important contemporary art and ideas.
